

The present owner of the Joadja Valley property, Miss Pat Lee, who came from a cattle ranch in Arkansas, U.S.A., intends to further develop the 3600 acres as a cattle raising station, and also has ideas of restoring portion of the former township as a tourist attraction. There is so much to see and meditate upon concerning this old-time industrial enterprise, whilst the Joadja Valley in itself has many charming features and its very ruggedness, combined with the richness of the bottom pastures, are both intriguing and beautiful.
